NEW DEMOCRACY

A public program on radical, cultural and creative practices of democratic innovation from across Europe

In cooperation with European Cultural Foundation (ECF) and Pakhuis de Zwijger, Network Democracy organizes a series of events on democratic and cultural renewal in Europe from a citizen's perspective. This program explores different alternative practices that deepen democracy and transform our cities for the common good. Network Democracy will stage initiatives and people who are part of a growing movement of urban citizen co-development. These initiatives are tackling issues on urban planning, cultural community initiatives, safeguarding and preservation of public space and participatory governance.

NETWORK DEMOCRACY ON FABCITY CAMPUS

In early April 2016 a temporary, freely accessible campus will be built at the head of Amsterdam's Java Island in the city's Eastern Harbour District. Conceived as a green, self-sustaining city, the FabCity campus will comprise some 50 innovative pavilions, installations and prototypes. More than 400 young students, professionals, artists and creatives will develop the site into a sustainable urban area, where they will work, create, explore and present their solutions to current urban issues.
